A busy time in the TPT National Office!

The TPT National Office is always a very busy place, but it seems to have been even busier lately. With such a small team of three, it can be a bit of a whirlwind but we love what we do and really enjoy producing and promoting the Trail in a variety of ways, along with all the other tasks we do on a day to day basis.

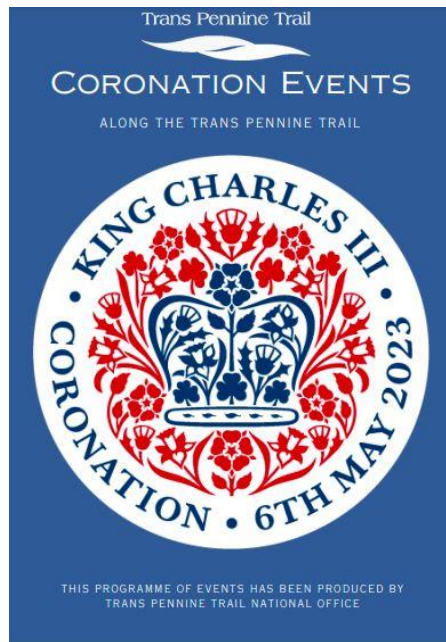

Over the past few months, we have produced three kid's activity packs. They are full of fun things to do over the school holidays and for special events such as the King's Coronation. The Coronation pack has been sent to schools along the Trail and we are looking to continue to send out future packs so schools have an extra resource they can use and share with parents and guardians.

To access these packs, click on the image below and it will take you to the children's section on our website.

We have also produced a Coronation events programme which includes lots of great events taking place across the Trail over the Coronation weekend. The TPT crosses 27 local authorities, so pulling together a programme covering the whole of the Trail was no mean feat. Our aim was to make people aware of events taking place near the Trail, in the hope that people would use the TPT to get to their local activities. Apologies if we missed any as there was so much happening. It's fantastic to see communities coming together to celebrate!

We produce monthly videos which consist of images of our users out enjoying the Trail. These are really fun to produce and we love seeing people doing lots of different activities including walking, running, cycling, horse riding and wheeling not to mention café stops, picnics and family days out.

We have also produced a series of podcasts that you can listen to HERE

And finally, the Team produce a newsletter that gets sent out to Friends and Supporters of the TPT quarterly. The newsletter is jam packed full of information, stories and updates from across the Trail. Our newsletter really captures what takes place across the Trail throughout the year and we love pulling it together. It is a collaboration between friends, volunteers, local officers and supporters who have a story or update to share. If you would like to receive future newsletters, please get in touch by emailing info@transpenninetrail.org.uk.

We hope you enjoy what we have produced so far this year and please keep checking social media or your inbox for future publications.
